DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The house at Queen's Cove, overlooking the confluence of Hunting Creek and the Choptank River was constructed in 1970 for Mr. & Mrs. J. Dallas Blades. One small portion of the building was moved from Dorchester County. Since the building was frame and all of its present exterior is now brick, little can be said about its early appearance without the aid of photographs.

Its interior is like several dwellings of the region, with exposed champhered joists and beaded under-side to the flooring. It appears to have been a single room with fireplace and enclosed stair, much like the older building at Painter's Range near Preston.
